

SIGHT OF PUEBLO FLOOD SCENES IS CALLED SICKENING

Rowland Wimmer Writes His Cousin, Richard Wiggert, of City's Misfortune

18 FEET OF WATER IN STREET NEAR THEIR BUSINESS PLACE

Loss of Human Life Placed at Nearly 1,000

"One cannot describe in words the damage and destruction that has been caused in Pueblo by the flood. To look at the sight from one of our nearest hills, is enough in itself to make one sick."

No writes Rowland Wimmer of the La Crosse Saddlery company of Pueblo, to his cousin, Richard E. Wiggert of La Crosse. Mr. Wimmer went through the entire flood situation and writes of his experiences as follows: "We are in receipt of your kind letter of June 7, and wish to say that while the flood has caused us a loss of between $7,000 and $8,000, we are extremely lucky in comparison to the majority of the business houses in this city."

Water 18 Feet Deep
"The waters of the river broke the levee somewhat to the north of the business section causing the water to pour through the lower business district. The depth of the water at Second and Greenwood, five blocks from our store, was 18 feet. At Second and Main streets it was about 12 feet deep. This is the location of three large furniture houses, one of our large banks, and L. T. Frazier Saddlery company."

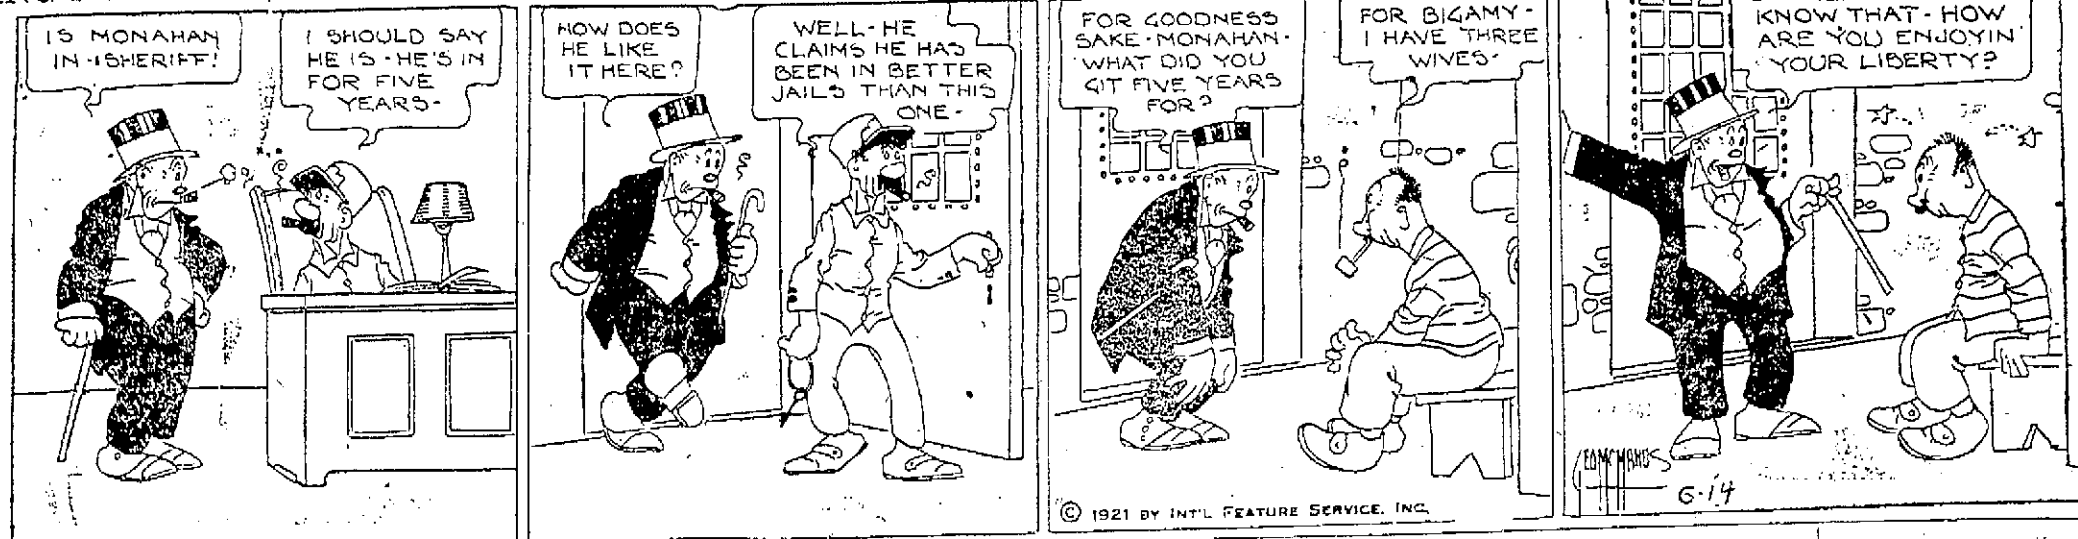

"Fourth and Main streets was under six feet of water, while our firm just one-half block away, had one foot of water on our main floor. Our entire basement stock is ruined and the stock on our main floor is pretty badly damaged."

"One cannot describe in words the damage and destruction that has been caused. To look at the sight from one of our nearest hills, is enough in itself to make one sick. These firms, that were located in the lower section, and that went through the worst of the damage are completely wiped out. It was certainly a sight to see a two-story building floating down our main street."

1,000 People Dead
"Present estimation of the loss of life is upwards of 1,000. There are from 1,000 to 2,000 dead horses and other animals lying in the debris, and the property damage cannot yet be estimated although it is considered to be from ten to fifteen million dollars."

"Commissioners state it will take five million dollars to repair and replace bridges, five to ten millions to replace the river levees. The city was immediately placed under martial law, and one must have passes to enter the water district. No one is allowed on the streets after 7 p. m. James, my brother, has been on duty night and day under authority of state troops and the Colorado

Rangers. There are perhaps about 500 troops on duty, with an aerial squadron patrolling the city.

No Light for 72 Hours
"For 72 hours, we were without light, gas or water. Thanks to Providence it rained considerably after the flood itself and we were able to get rainwater."

"We now have the water in spouting quantity, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company has been good enough to turn their electric system over to the city, so for the first time we will have a little light tonight."

"The night of the flood, mother opened her house to ten victims, part of whom were driven from their homes, and the rest who were caught on this side of the river and were unable to return to their homes on the south side."

Aid Flood Victims.
"The next night we accommodated nine persons. Food can be had only by permit, until such time as the railroads can be repaired and are able to bring in food shipments."

"So you see we have had considerable excitement and setbacks since Friday night. This on top of father's death had made it doubly hard on mother and James and I."

Wish to thank you for your kind letter and also to assure you that we are all well and believe we will be able to pull out of this in fair shape."

"Big Tim"

"BIG TIM" MURPHY, Chicago labor czar and political boss of the tenderloin, made a mistake into which cut-throats sometimes fall, although the astute are too wary to take the hazard for less than a king's ransom.

For years "Big Tim" had done about as he pleased in Chicago, and futile warrants testify that it sometimes pleased him to "bump off" a troublesome rival. Time after time he has been suspected of complicity in the "gunman" crimes of Chicago's under-world, but with nothing more than the tolerant if indeed not sometimes implicated Chicago police to contend with, his immunity from conviction became a joke among his fellows and a reproach upon Chicago.

But at last "Big Tim" fell for the lure of the postal holdup, and in stepped Uncle Sam in the role of Sherlock Holmes. Probably well advised by Dr. Watson, Uncle proceeded to sherlock in the most sherlockian manner, with the result that the astounded and crestfallen "Tim" promptly found himself picked up like the commonest hobo and brought to book with $112,000 looted from the postal service inextricably entangled in his mane. With him are booked several other lesser ruffians who may have cause to reflect how often the trusted leaders of out-lavvy squeal yellow when apprehended.

Uncle Sam is like the hand-wagon and the buzz-saw—not to be monkeyed with. Thugs may get away with all sorts of plain and fancy murder and robbery while on neighborly terms with municipal police authority, but when the United States of America steps in the dance changes from the shimmy to the lock-step. Execant "Big Tim", and good riddance.

How many of his contemporaneous freebooters "Big Tim" has helped to put away may not be very important, perhaps calling loudest for the mythical gun that "shoots both ways", but in any event neither his alleged homicidal adventures nor his raids on the wealth of men and nations constituted his greatest crime. The debauchery of union labor and the squandering of its reputation, perpetrated largely to the detriment of innocent workers, is his most despicable felony because it involved treachery committed while in a fiduciary position. In its national convention the American Federation of Labor has just now demanded that unionism be purged of these treasonable blood-suckers, and in laying its hands upon "Big Tim" for an offense which promises to afford him entertainment at Leavenworth prison for a comfortable stretch the federal authorities have made a good beginning. Other trades union officials charged with blackmail and extortion have been indicted in Chicago, and it appears that at last the prophets point to clearer times. We wish "Big Tim" a long and sheltered life within the hospitable walls to which he has been invited by a host who will not take "no" for an answer.

Unknown Greatness

ST. PAUL chided the Athenians because they had raised an altar "to the unknown god." He admonished them of their ignorance and of the futility of worshipping an unknown god, because there is but one God.

There is but one God, but there are billions of men.

We have sung of arms, and of many men, and mostly they were renowned. Perhaps the apostle would approve if sometimes we were to sing to "an unknown man."

William Bamford died in Madison Friday, an unknown man. That does not mean that he had no neighbors and friends, for he had many; but that he had not become distinguished among his fellow men.

Bamford came here from Vermont. He was a granite man, and his mastery of his craft may be seen in many Madison edifices of the larger type. He went to the city on a big "job," and when it was done he and Mrs. Bamford had come to love the place, and so he stayed on as foreman of stone and brick work for a Madison contractor.

How often have we admired the massive stone construction of the new state capitol! Topping its dome is a great bronze figure, "Forward!" It is a French masterpiece, a classic admonition to leadership among the peoples and nations.

The sculptor has won acclaim. The commission that had charge of the great enterprise has won distinction as have the architects, artists and builders. Their names are often heard as we point with pride to the noble building, and even now it is justly being urged that their names be inscribed on a tablet and placed in the capitol.

"Forward", remember, is a mass of gilded bronze standing over sixteen feet high and weighing more than three tons.

Gather together the hundred or more of our leading citizens who have won distinction above their fellows in the community, and offer some great prize to that one who shall place a duplicate of "Forward" upon the top of a dome towering 300 feet in the air. Let it be a million dollars, or ten millions. It matters not at all, for not one of them could do it.

Yet "Billy" Bamford did it. No one has mentioned it as an achievement, or Bamford as great because of it, least of all Mr. Bamford, for to him it was a common thing in the day's work. But he was great, and none realized it. He was great, and did not realize it himself.

Probably there would be greater incentive to achievement if the men who do the hard, practical work in creating our modern industrial pyramids were recognized at their true worth. Back of Bamford were the finances of Wisconsin; back of him were artists, architects and engineers. But it was Bamford—plain, practical, competent Billy Bamford—who did the actual work of erection, and it was great work, and good.

And so today we sing of arms, and of Billy Bamford.

America Triumphs

Hot off the cables from Paris comes the announcement that the dressmakers of the Rue de la Paix have sent their mannequins to the races in skirts of ankle length. And, add the cables, the change is to be hailed as an American triumph, for American designers have been trying since last year to supersede the knee-length skirts which the style-makers in the Rue de la Paix decreed. As an evidence of international leadership we submit that this event is no small feather in the cap of these United States. For Fifth Avenue or Michigan Boulevard, or wherever it is that American style designs originate, to cram a hunch down the throat of the Rue de la Paix is, in its own way, as signal a victory as, let us say, a Japanese concession of the open door in China would be. It indicates that Mr. George M. Cohan's "Little Old U. S. A." is getting to be quite a big boy.

But what we started out to say is that we hope this dispatch from the front, with all its patriotic inspiration for Americans, will not be overlooked by the sweet young things here at home. It would be almost tragic if the American dressmakers, after dragging the Rue de la Paix into line, were to be repudiated by their countrywomen.

Let us hope that feminine America will put patriotism before, or—well, shall we say "publicity?"

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

The senate this afternoon passed the bill providing an increase of state aid for county agricultural schools. By the terms of this bill the La Crosse County Agricultural school will in the future receive $8,000 per year instead of $4,000 per year as in the past.

As a result of its investigations into the water supply problem in La Crosse, the railroad commission has recommended that the city build an entirely new water system. A reservoir system, to be situated on some bluff east of the city was proposed by the commission. This would have sufficient capacity to store water enough for several days or weeks, thus affording an even and constant pressure.

A bucket brigade formed by neighbors last night extinguished a fire that for a time threatened to destroy the home of Peter Murphy on Indian Hill near the rubber mills. An alarm was sent in but the neighbors did not wait. They gathered and passed buckets from the pump and by the time the fire fighters arrived the blaze was out.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Peter Hellen of North La Crosse is building an up-to-date runabout for his own use.

Mrs. Dr. Behrendt, nee Miss Josephine Losey, of this city, arrived in La Crosse yesterday from Germany and is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. W. Losey.

Three buildings were struck by lightning during the storm last night. They were the residence of C. E. Norbeck on King street, the establishment of Miller Bros. on Main street, and the Fred Kroner wholesale hardware building.

A. W. Pettibone will ask the city to police his park when he has finished the improvements now under way. Nuisances of all kinds will be suppressed, particularly drinking.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

A La Crosse man has discovered the secret of perpetual motion, that is, he thinks he has. He has invented a machine which needs neither steam nor electricity and is so strong that the model he has built can not be stopped by his own weight. The invention is not patented yet and is therefore kept secret.

Ten houses on Berlin street are being connected with the city water works this week.

The foundation work of Mr. E. R. Barron's new store building on the southwest corner of Fifth and Main streets was completed yesterday.

A farmer was in the city yesterday retailing goats at two dollars apiece.

A DIFFERENT PLANE

BY R. RAY BAKER

In a moment of indirection, when the romantic side of her nature was set aflame by glowing words of sentiment from two masculine lips, Adelaide Whitman consented to become the bride of the young man who uttered them.

And now she regretted the rashness. For Gilbert Claxton was not the man for her. He belonged to a different plane of life—a lower plane. She felt convinced. She was the belle of Brockton, and her father was the mayor and one of the wealthiest citizens.

Gilbert was a dreamer. He lived in a world of imagination and lacked the practicalness that makes for success. He received a small wage for his labors as a clerk in the offices of the Oceana Portland Cement company, and outside of working hours he dreamed and wrote the dreams into stories that never sold.

Gilbert was writing a book, he told Adelaide, but she had no faith in him or his works. He was a good looking man with a fine vocabulary, but that was the sum total of his assets. He did not know how to get in the best society, and he never looked well groomed, and his hair was wild just right, and the collar he wore usually had a spot of grease on it somewhere. This was Adelaide's appraisal of the man she had promised to marry, said appraisal being made when she and her cousin came to her room one day.

So Adelaide sat down and wrote a note to Gilbert, explaining the situation. She could not tell him in person, for fear that his fascinating personality would undermine her resolution.

"I am very sorry this has happened," said the note, "but I realize I was not quite myself when I made that promise to you. Really we were not meant for each other. We belong to different planes of life, and we never would be happy. Please forgive me."

Gilbert received the note that afternoon. It came with three long, heavy envelopes, and when at first he saw he took it for an acceptance of some of his work. He called, holding up the small envelope, "That's something different for a change, isn't it?"

Jerry was the slim, brown-haired girl seated at a table reading a manuscript. She had lived with Mrs. Claxton since the death of the girl's father some years ago and was considered one of the family. Jerry was greatly interested in the manuscript which Gilbert was forever sending her, and getting back, and one day she had asked permission to look one over. She had read it and found a helpful criticism which she had written into the story. After that Gilbert always let Jerry peruse the product of his brain before sending it away.

"I never said anything," said Jerry, "but I am sure I am sure to tell what is wrong with your work."

So Gilbert placed the girl on his "staff," and when she was not attending to housework and getting ready for school she was engaged in reading his manuscript. Just now she was helping Gilbert with his book.

Her eyes brightened when Gilbert held up the small envelope, and she faced him with a puzzled look when he noticed the penmanship of the address. He tore the envelope open in silence and read, and then, without saying a word, Jerry's eyes followed him through the door, and they were full of sympathy—something that she could not understand.

A year rolled by and Adelaide Whitman had not yet met the immaculate man with the high ambitions, a man who had Gilbert Claxton made his mark as a writer. However, they saw no more of each other except when they met by chance. After that time from her Gilbert made no overtures. If he suffered as a result of her action he suffered in silence. No one could read his thoughts—unless it was Jerry.

Then came a great day for Gilbert. What made the day great was a film of his work, and he had been invited to New York for a consultation regarding the book that was to be published.

And as the train took him out of sight a middle-aged woman and a young girl turned from the station.

When he comes back he will be a success, predicted the middle-aged woman. "I know his work will win, although I have not read it," said the girl. "I have read it, and I know it is good."

To herself she added somewhat sadly: "Yes, he will be a success, and then he will come back and marry that Miss Whitman, while I—I am just a kind sister."

The book was a success from the start. It became one of the record-breaking sellers of the season. Inside of a week it had sold 100,000 copies, and Gilbert was on his way to fame, while the future looked infinitely bright as well.

When the word came that Gilbert was returning to the old home town, half the populace laid plans to entertain him. Many of them were like Jerry, who had paid him scant attention, while still others had scoffed at him and his dreaming ways. But now that he was a celebrity he wanted to show his hand.

Adelaide Whitman's father broke the news to her.

So, seeing Claxton is coming home for a visit, Mr. Whitman observed, returning home one evening from his office. "Adelaide, it seems to me you should have told me that that chap who had had him think of the social distinction—not to mention the money side of the question."

Adelaide felt much the same. The immaculate man with high ambitions had not yet come, and she was beginning to fear he never would. Yes, Gilbert would be good each now.

When Gilbert arrived he was greeted by a crowd of friends and would-be friends. The mayor was there to shake his hand and welcome him home. It was such a grand thing for one of the home boys to make good out in the world, said the mayor, and added that he had always predicted great things for Gilbert.

Gilbert looked little different from his old self. He was not perfectly dressed, and his collar had a couple of spots, and his hair was not adjusted just right. But persons who had criticized him for his untidiness in the past were smiling happily.

"I never succeed," Jerry said as they entered the house. "Did you?"

"Never," he confessed. "Not until"

HARVEY MEETS OLD MOTHER NATURE AND IS A CHANGED BOY

Mother Nature is one of the nicest old ladies you'll ever meet. She is as kind as can be. She knows lots to tell about and she tells it. She is what we sometimes call a "regular fellow."

Harvey Perkins was never much on this out-door stuff. He couldn't see anything to it. Why, where was there any fun in tramping through the woods on a hot day? Gosh, no. Better to hang around the ice-cream soda fountain where it was cool.

This was because Harvey had never taken a long walk through the woods, or if he had it had not been in his young life he didn't remember it.

He hadn't made the acquaintance of Mother Nature. He had never walked up to her, introduced himself and shaken hands. He had missed something.

And then one day some of the fellows who were always doing something out in the woods or along the little lake up in the hills just back of town, induced Harvey to accompany them on one of their trips.

Harvey is introduced. That whole day was spent in rambling among the trees and along the lake shore and over the hills. Harvey was astonished. He had never imagined there were such wonderful things so close to his home. The boys took great pains to show him many of Nature's points of interest. They described the habits of the lively little squirrels, told him about the moss that grew on the tree trunks.

When the bunch returned home that night, Harvey—was just plain Harvey with all the fellows now, and never even got the least bit hot out there under the trees, while in town he had almost perspired himself away at the soda fountain, which was reputed to be the "coolest place in town."

Today Harvey is one of the best friends Mother Nature has. And she is one of his best friends.

And Harvey says, when he tramps up into the hills: "Gee, I don't see how I came to be such a dumbbell as to hang around down at that town all day when I could have been out here having some real fun."

Too many other things out there in the woods were more interesting. And the funny thing was that he never even got the least bit hot out there under the trees, while in town he had almost perspired himself away at the soda fountain, which was reputed to be the "coolest place in town."

AUTOGRAF COLLECTIONS

There are many boys and girls who greatly admire all well-known men and women, even to the extent of getting their signatures for an autograph collection.

It is more interesting to get the original signatures instead of those reproduced from a photograph, or by some other method. One way to get an autograph when the person lives out of town, is to write him a very short but courteous note stating your desire and asking if he will kindly write his name on the enclosed slip of paper and send it to you in the enclosed stamped and addressed envelope. Don't forget the stamp.

You may keep your collection of autographs in a special album, or put them into a box. The album collection looks neater, of course, and is much handier for at the side of each signature you can write such data concerning it as you wish.

Addresses of well-known people may be secured by watching the columns of the newspapers closely.

On a statue when a friend of mine dropped in. Of course, he wanted me to make a bust of him, so I did, or rather, I tried. Somehow I couldn't get the nose on right. It wanted to lean either to the right or to the left and I was confused.

But the finished product, not counting the nose, wasn't so bad. Only Bill said it didn't look much like him.—Contributed by "The Modeler."

MRS. G. F. SEXAUER GIVES SHOWER TO HONOR ANNA STRUPP

MRS. GUST F. Sexauer and Miss Mildred Sexauer were hostesses at their home, 1121 State street, on Tuesday afternoon at a handsome luncheon affair. It was given in compliment to Miss Anna Strupp, who is soon to be married to Mrs. Sexauer's son, Mr. Clarence Sexauer. The rooms and the porches were beautifully decorated for the occasion with roses, carnations, larkspur and blue iris, which were lavishly used. The tables which were laid in the rooms and porches, were prettily dressed with roses and larkspur. Covers were laid for twenty-five, the place of the bride-elect being indicated by a pretty corsage bouquet. Following supper a miscellaneous show of gifts was presented to Miss Strupp, the parcels filling two large baskets. A very happy and merry time was enjoyed during the opening of the parcels.

A heart guessing contest was conducted, which consisted in the rearranging of transformed letters, the result to spell a kitchen utensil. Delicious refreshments were served and Miss Morris was presented with a shower of gifts of kitchen ware.

JOSEPH HOFWEBER TAKES AGENCY FOR TWO AUTOMOBILES

Becomes Distributor for Chalmers and Maxwell Cars in this Territory

Joe. E. Hofweber, well known automobile man of this city has taken on the distribution of the new Chalmers and new Maxwell automobiles for this city and surrounding territory.

Mr. Hofweber began his automobile career in 1904 when with his father, Mr. Peter Hofweber, he built an automobile truck for their own use, at that time being engaged in the plumbing and well business.

In 1909 Mr. Hofweber received the agency for the Ford car. However he was active with the agency for only a short period having invented an automobile starter, the first on the market, this article he with two associates, his brother Aug. J. and Mr. E. P. Gleason under the firm name of Motor Devices Mfg. Co., manufacturer, and sold in large quantities until the invention and factory was sold to other parties in 1911.

Mr. Hofweber immediately began the design of a new Passenger Automobile. Prominent automobile men of Detroit, Mich., became interested with him and the company to build his car, was financed chiefly between La Crosse and Detroit parties and the factory and offices located in Detroit, Mich., under the firm name of Wahl Motor Co.

Later Mr. Hofweber began and designed and built a light commercial automobile to be distributed in this country. However he did not see fit to continue with that on account of the war conditions and came back to La Crosse; invented and has been manufacturing, in a small way, a number of Automobile Accessories in addition to operating an automobile repair garage and other machine work at 121 south Front street at which address he will continue in automobile repairing and for some time as service work on the new line of Chalmers and Maxwell automobiles.

Mr. Hofweber contemplates, in the future, to build a modern, complete service garage.

BUILDING OF TRAIN SHED TO COMMENCE WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Construction of the train shed over the market square is expected to begin in a week or ten days, depending upon the arrival of all materials required for the work according to announcement of the city engineer on Tuesday.

While the corrugated material for the roof has been on the grounds for some time, it was announced that the steel construction has been delayed pending the arrival of materials. It was thought that the material would arrive within a week.

The shed which was authorized by the council several months ago, will be 20 feet wide and 176 feet in length according to the specifications. One half of the roof will extend over the cement walk and the other half will furnish protection to the wagons from rain and sun. The city engineer's statement was to the effect that the structure would be completed within a month after being started.

FIREMAN INJURED
OSHKOSH, Wis.—Gavin Perry of Kankakee, fireman on the division of the Northwestern road, was seriously injured, about 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night, when the engine on which he was serving struck the steel crane of a concrete mixer being used on construction work on the Oshkosh-Winneconne road. The crane wrenched the cab of the locomotive. Perry was thrown out and sustained a broken jaw and a fractured leg. The mixer was near the railroad track and it is believed some one maliciously turned the crane so it would project over the Northwestern track.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Have You Tried It?

Everybody has read the above headline; how many believe it? Have you a little-one in the home, and has that dear little mite when its stomach was not just right felt the comforts that come with the use of Fletcher's Castoria? You have heard the cry of pain. Have you heard them cry for Fletcher's Castoria? Try it.

Just help baby out of its trouble tomorrow with a taste of Castoria. Watch the difference in the tone of the cry, the look in the eye, the wiggle in the tiny fingers. The transformation is complete—from pain to pleasure. Try it.

You'll find a wonderful lot of information about Baby in the booklet that is wrapped around every bottle of Fletcher's Castoria.

TANK LINE TO BUILD A MODERN OIL STATION

Mrs. Mary Freeman Dies at Home in St. Petersburg, Fla.

SPARTA, Wis.—Sparta will have a new oil station in the near future, it is probable. Norman L. Rogers, of the Westbrook Tank Line company, has been in the city with E. L. Jones, special representative of the oil company, planning to establish a new station. The company is organized in thirty-eight towns, and will build 200 stations in the state. Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the land adjoining the warehouse of the Grand Rapids Mill, owned by the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company. The warehouse will be 24x24, modern and equipped with electric pumps. Four tanks of 15,000 gallons capacity will also be erected.

Soldiers Buried Saturday
A largely attended military funeral was held in St. Patrick's Catholic church Saturday morning for Charles Sullivan, a Sparta soldier who died in France July 29, 1918. The service was conducted by Rev. P. H. Mook. The military organization in the city attended in a body, and with a large procession of flags, escorted the remains to the Catholic cemetery, where the military burial service was held. Charles Sullivan was a son of the late John Sullivan and wife. He was a sergeant. Two brothers, residing in Sparta, survive him and a number of other relatives both in Sparta and in La Crosse. Howard Teasdale, chairman of the committee appointed at a special school meeting to report on the high school building, has announced the members of the committee as follows: First ward—W. T. Jefferson, Fred Holden, Mrs. R. B. Graves and Miss Nell B. Jones. Second ward—Howard Teasdale, M. M. Hanev, Mrs. Paul Schaller and Mrs. George Hemstock. Third ward—J. L. Jones, T. H. King, Harry Barney and Mrs. E. C. Rice. By Fourth ward—Z. S. Rice, Leo Nolan, Mrs. W. Roote and Miss Florence Wells. Town of Sparta—John Rayne and Mrs. Robert Oswald. Town of Angeleno—George Ruston. This committee will make a thorough investigation of school matters in the city, and will report at the annual meeting which will be held in July.

A banquet will be held in Sparta during the week of July 9 to 14. A program of lectures, music and everything entertaining has been arranged. Mrs. Mary Freeman Dies Word has been received in the city of the death of Mrs. Mary Freeman, widow of the late Frank Freeman, which occurred at her home in St. Petersburg, Fla., after an illness with tuberculosis, following an attack of pneumonia. For many years the family resided in Sparta. Two years ago when her health began to fail, her children went with her to Florida, hoping the warmer climate would be beneficial to her health. She was formerly Miss Mary Howells, a native of the southern part of Wales. Her parents came to this country when she was two years of age and settled in Pennsylvania. Eight years later they moved to the vicinity of Sparta. In 1881, she married Mr. Freeman. Several children were born to them, two dying in infancy. Her husband died in 1903. The surviving children are Mrs. R. M. Halverson, Mrs. Price Woodworth, Mrs. James Andrus and Esther and Fred Freeman. Mrs. Freeman was buried in Florida.

Mrs. Anna Hancock, a member of the Morrow Memorial Home for the Aged in Sparta, died in St. Mary's hospital after a lingering illness. Short funeral services were held in John Jones' undertaking rooms, conducted by Rev. E. M. North, pastor of the Methodist church, and the body was interred in the St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Hancock was born in Ohio in 1847. She came to Sparta from Verona in 1917. A sister in Dakota survives her.

SERVICE MEN'S PLOT IS FOR ALL AMERICAN SOLDIERS

Harry Robinson Makes Response for American Legion at Dedication Exercises

"The plot of ground presented by La Crosse county to the American Legion as a burial place for its soldier dead is not meant for members of the American Legion only, but all American soldiers who have no other resting place," said Harry Robinson in his address of response to the presentation speech by R. W. Davis, chairman of the county board of supervisors at the dedication exercises Sunday in Oak Grove cemetery. Mr. Robinson's address follows:
"Gratefully the members of the American Legion and all the veterans of the great world war and the Spanish-American war accept this plot of ground from the citizens of La Crosse county, and we here pledge ourselves to administer it as a sacred trust. It is not meant for members of the American Legion only, nor veterans of the great world war, but for all American soldiers who have no other resting place and who may chance this way. The people of this county in presenting us with this ground have recognized that the soldiers of the republic have done the nation a real service. And yet that service is hardly appreciated to its full extent."
"As was said by the orator on Memorial day, anyone can fight to defend his home or his family or his nation, but the American wars have not been wars of defense against invasion. The War of the Revolution was a fight for independence—a fight for the liberty of the people. Our forefathers could easily have stayed at home, but they chose to fight, to undergo great suffering and hardship, and to die, the principles on which our nation is founded. The soldiers of the Civil war went forth to the attack for the freedom of the black man, of the south, the principles on which our nation is founded. Our soldiers fought for principle, and it is but fair to them that memories of the deeds they did should be preserved to all posterity."
"It is not the better of the veterans of the world war that we are the greatest soldiers in American history. Over the hill lies the ground dedicated as the last resting place of the soldiers of the Civil war. It is our earnest wish that until the last Great Summons Memorial day exercises be had over their graves."
"One by one they are passing away, and soon there will be nothing but sacred memories. Happy indeed may we be that we have these graves to remind us of the deeds they did and the principles on which they fought. It is these principles and the willingness of our soldiers to fight for them that have made the United States the leading nation of the world today, and if each succeeding generation will come to the side of those graves and learn the lesson they teach, the position of our republic among the nations of the world is forever assured."

"I believe that it is with a spirit of recognition of the valiant service by these soldiers performed in our wars that the people of La Crosse county, through their supervisors, so readily responded to the call for this burial ground. That it will be well administered, we promise here and now. That

BLAINE VETOES BILL TO PERMIT RAILWAYS TO ABANDON LINES

Measure in Conflict With Esch-Cummins Act Declares Governor

MADISON, Wis.—The Morris bill giving the railroad commission authority to permit carriers to abandon portions of their lines when unprofitable was vetoed by Governor Blaine Tuesday on the ground that it conflicts with the federal Esch-Cummins act.

The governor quoted the federal statute which reads that "no carrier shall abandon all or any part of a line, unless there shall first have been obtained from the commission a certificate that the present or future public convenience and necessity permit."

Saying that this would bring a conflict between the two statutes he said that "the rule of law is so elementary that it requires no citations that, in a case where the federal jurisdiction over a subject matter, the power of the state to legislate with reference thereto exists only as long as the federal power is dormant and unexercised."

ASSEMBLY DEFEATS BILL CHANGING THE CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

MADISON, Wis.—The civil service commission will remain a three man department through action of the assembly Tuesday afternoon, in defeating the bill calling for reorganization of the department under a single civil service examiner.

This is the first of the special investigating committee bills, referring to commissions that has been killed by the lower house. It is taken to show a disposition on the part of the assembly to leave the administrative agencies remain as they are for the next two years.

The assembly finally accepted the advertisement.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let Your Sore, Swollen, Aching Feet Spread Out in a Bath of "Tiz"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bun-ion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

DAIRY MEN CARRY FIGHT ON FILLED MILK TO CONGRESS

Seek to Prevent Interstate Movement of Milk Containing Fat Substitutes

WASHINGTON.—Legislation to prohibit interstate movement of milk filled with fats or coconut oil as substitutes for cream was advocated Monday before the house agriculture committee by representatives of milk producers. The substitutes, Dr. E. V. McCullom of Johns Hopkins university declared, would not produce growth in children. He urged passage of a bill by Representative Voigt, republican, Wisconsin, to prohibit adulteration of milk.

Out Wee, Soldiers Grove, was the first victim to appear before Judge Hunt in police court following the latter's announcement that persons convicted of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition were going to be taxed the full amount in the future.

He was fined $50 and costs at noon Monday.

In addition to being intoxicated, according to the police, Mr. Wee made an attempt to escape with the car while being questioned by the police officer, with the result that the officer closely escaped being run down. Evidence to this effect, submitted in court led to the heavy fine.

William Steverington, who accompanied Wee, was fined $7.50 after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication, it was said.

Petroleum

-An Industrial Pivot

FROM the back of a sheep to the back of a man, wool passes through dozens of processes and machines, some of which were made possible, and all of which were shortened, by some product of petroleum.

So delicate is the adjustment of this machinery that from the cams moving at a rate of 350 revolutions per minute, to the flying spindles, whose revolutions per minute exceed 12,000, every part must be in unison.

For, should one part be retarded a little, and another part speeded up unduly, through faulty lubrication, there would be a strain on the fabric, and a break.

The seriousness of such a break is seen when it is understood that the severing of a single thread will bring the giant loom to a standstill instantly.

This is but a single example of the problems constantly being brought to Standard Oil Company (Indiana) lubricating engineers for solution, and emphasizes the necessity for the minutest accuracy on the part of these specialists in drawing specifications for special lubricants, and the need for extreme accuracy on the part of the manufacturing department in producing lubricants to meet these specifications.

It illustrates how highly specialized is the branch of industry which engages the attention of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), and the degree of enthusiasm for perfection which must prevail throughout this organization.

And this enthusiasm does prevail. Harmony and concentrated interest is ever present throughout the organization of 25,000 men and women, every one of whom, from the Chairman of the Board of Directors to the lowliest recruit, is bending every effort to do his part in the production of useful products, and to have each of a superior standard of fineness.

MRS. KRUEGER SEEKS MONEY TAKEN FROM BODY OF SON ENNIS

Also Makes Declaration that Gantz Killed Him. Although it is Denied

A demand that federal officials here turn over to her valuable legal documents, a watch and about $45 in cash, taken during a raid on her home in Owen, Wis., in 1918, in which two of her sons were arrested and a third killed when officers surrounded the home and forced the boys, alleged draft dodgers, to show their hands, was made by Mrs. Krueger in the offices of the U. S. marshal at Madison Tuesday.

Between convulsions of tears she declared that it was a "guilty kind of a government" that would order a citizen killed for committing some little offense, and then take what belongs to him. "It isn't a government at all," she wailed.

She made the declaration following a charge that Deputy Marshal Joseph Gantz was the one who killed her son Ennis, Frank O'Connor, willing marshal, denied the assertion. "I'll tell you right here, Mrs. Krueger," he replied, "there's no use of you coming down here and starting an argument about that affair. Mr. Gantz was not even in Owen at the time your son was killed. Furthermore whatever Gantz did was done under instructions."

Officers here do not know just where to lay their fingers on the missing papers, watch and money, but assert that they are probably in the hands of responsible parties. An investigation is being started to locate them. Mrs. Krueger charged that Mr. O'Connor then marshal, took the watch and money from Ennis' body at the undertaker's. He denied having seen the articles. Deputy Marshal John P. LaMont said that he remembered having counted the money at the time and having taken a package of papers. He said he did not open them and did not know what they were. Local officials in Owen had a hand in the raid and it is believed that they have knowledge of the articles.

LEGISLATURE EXTENDS SEASON ON GAME FISH

New Law, Also Protects Trout During Seven Months of Year

MADISON, Wis.—Devotees of the hook and line will have fifteen extra days to boat mosquitoes and attempt to land black bass, pike, pickerel, and muskellunge in inland waters under the new law passed by the legislature which opens the season for these game fish June 15 instead of July 1.

Possibility that fishing in any manner in trout streams between September 1 and April 30 will be illegal is seen in a measure proposing the complete protection of all fish for the seven fall, winter, and spring months of the year.

Should this bill, which has been approved by both houses, become a law, the mere act of fishing in a trout stream, whether fish are caught or not, would be sufficient grounds on which to arrest anglers and convict them of violating the statutes.

SAFETY LESSONS FOR AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

Clutch, Transmission and Differential

1. The clutch transmits or disconnects the power from the engine to the transmission. It permits the engine to pick up its load gradually.

a. Keep the foot off the clutch unless you are shifting gear. "Riding" or "slipping" the clutch should be discouraged. Unnecessary pressure on the clutch wears the clutch mechanism, makes clutch surfaces smooth, and may cause the clutch to overheat.

b. Clutch seldom needs adjustment except with reference to floor boards. Clearance in every direction. Noisy gear shifting is generally due to clutch not being "thrown out" far enough.

2. The transmission transmits power from the clutch through the differential, to the rear wheels. The transmission is a series of gear reductions which provide increased leverage and additional power for starting and climbing hills.

a. Keep transmission well lubricated. Use a good transmission oil or semi-fluid grease. Heavy grease will not circulate through bearings. Oil level can be determined by removing screw plug in side of transmission case. Oil should be renewed about every 500 miles; case should be filled until oil flows out plug hole.

b. Gear teeth in transmission are sometimes broken off by throwing in clutch too suddenly, by shifting speeds rapidly when the engine and car speeds are equal, or by accidentally shifting into reverse when the car is moving forward.

3. The differential is a set of gears which equalize the power between the two rear wheels when they are going at unequal speeds. When turning a corner, the outside wheel travels faster than the inside wheel.

a. Turning a corner on two wheels may damage the differential due to unnecessary spinning of one of the rear wheels.

b. On chain drive trucks keep the two chains adjusted with equal tension; otherwise, differential will be worn unnecessarily.

c. It is essential that the differential be properly lubricated.

4. Universal joints are used to increase the flexibility of the drive shaft. Usually the drive shaft is in several pieces, joined by universal joints. They permit free rotation of the pieces of shaft even though they are not in an exact line with each other.

Garage Accident Hazards

5. In spite of the great number of accidents which have resulted from gasoline explosions, drivers and garage workers continue to do things which endanger not only their own lives, but also the lives and property of others.

a. It seems needless to caution against the use of matches, cigars, cigarettes, and other open flames near gasoline, or near oil-soaked rags and clothing.

b. In dumping or pouring gasoline from one container to another, static electric sparks may be developed. It is advisable always to keep the two containers in contact with each other, or to attach a chain to the pouring container, which will maintain the contact. This will lead off the electric charge and prevent sparking.

c. Sparks often result from striking together two pieces of metal. It is best to use kerosene instead of gasoline when cleaning oil and grease from metal parts.

d. Every motor vehicle should carry a tetrachloride fire extinguisher. For garage use probably the best fire extinguisher is one of the foam type. Never use water in a gasoline or oil fire; it will spread the fire. A mixture of sawdust and soda (about 10 pounds of sawdust) is good to put out oil fires. Sand is also effective.

6. The drain pan, side pans, and car in general should be kept clean and free from excessive oil. If present, excessive oil may do much to spread the flames in case of fire.

7. If extension cords are used for portable electric lights, it is necessary to guard against electric shock and fires resulting from electric causes. It is therefore advisable to use vapor-proof fittings, a keyless socket lamp enclosed in a vapor-proof globe and further protected with a rigid sign to prevent breakage. It is also advisable to have a rubber cable instead of ordinary electric cord; this should be kept in good condition.

8. When it is necessary to jack up the car and get underneath, be especially careful if any of the wheels have been removed. Block the other wheels to keep them from moving. If the support should give way, the car may fall and crush you. It is best to use a pit, if possible. Never depend on a jack when it is necessary to get under a car. Horses are better supports than jacks, ordinary boxes, or other makeshifts. The jacks are not operative when the rear wheels are jacked up off the ground.

9. When in the garage, the engine should not be run longer than necessary. Carbon monoxide is contained in the exhaust gases, and unless the garage is fairly well ventilated may cause headaches, other discomforts, and even death to the persons in the garage.

10. If you haven't a self-starter, be careful not to break your arm when cranking.

a. Always pull the crank up, not down, and don't spin it unless absolutely necessary.

b. When grasping crank, place thumb on same side of handle with the fingers; then if there is a kick-back, handle will slip from hand.

c. Keep the spark retarded until the engine has started.

d. Be careful when working around or using rags near rotating fan.

e. Keep wrenches and other tools in good condition; if badly worn they should be discarded.

f. Enter and leave the garage slowly. Street, car motemen, pedestrians, children, other drivers, and garage workers may not be looking.

11. Don't drive too close to the gasoline pump at garage or filling stations and always be sure to shut off the engine when the tank is being filled with gasoline.

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.
